PRESIDENT AT HARVARD GUARDED BY SWARM OF POLICE

"ROOSEVELT '80" MEETS CLASS.
President, as "plain Harvard graduate," greets old college friends. The photograph shows Mr. Roosevelt in a silk hat. Later he donned a soft hat.

"ROOSEVELT '80" COMRADES OF CLASS

As Plain Harvard Graduate, Head of Nation Is Welcomed to University, but Cloud of Secret Service Men and Uniformed Police Guard His Safety.

Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States, is one of the members of the class of 1880, Harvard University, who are in possession of the spacious Oakley Club grounds at Watertown this afternoon.

Save for the fact that at every turn he is surrounded by mounted police officers, that secret service men follow him with city detectives, and that beside the driver of his carriage sits Tyree, his constant guardian, the President is only a Harvard man at Harvard commencement.

All dinners, municipal greetings and receptions have been done away with at the President's wish, but the guards never leave him. His safety is closely watched. Ever since his arrival at the Back Bay station at 6:40 to-day 100 police officers and detectives have guarded him.

The President was the guest of Bishop Lawrence at his home on Brattle street, Cambridge, at breakfast. He toured the grounds of the university with members of his class for an hour.

SIMPLICITY.

By Morlon M. Birge.

The President said, "Yes, I'll come to Harvard, if I can be sure of being treated as an ordinary man. Like any other graduate." We promised fair and plain and promptly sent a legion of policemen to the train.

We sent this ordinary man no blessed many cops. The station was a simple sea of solid helmet tops. A double line of cops from the car to carriage ran.

A simple little safeguard for an ordinary man.

"Bill" Pierce, the superintendent of this handful of police, was there to see in person no one broke the simple peace. O'Leary, Captain up at "Five," was also standing by. And not the simplest thing escaped bold "Bucky's" eagle eye.

We saw the Presidential hat, his flashing smile and then his ordinary bodyguard of secret service men.

The mounted cops closed sharply in, the carriage rolled along. A simple sign of huge relief went up from "Bucky's" throat.

Hurrah for that reception. It's simplicity was great.

We've very glad the President did not arrive in state.

We never could have managed it on such a simple plan.

GOV. DOUGLAS TOO ILL TO MEET ROOSEVELT

HIS SICKNESS CONTINUES, AND DOCTOR ADVISES AGAINST GOING TO HARVARD.

BROCKTON, June 27.—Governor Douglas has not been able to attend the commencement exercises at Harvard tomorrow or to meet President Roosevelt. His condition has not changed for the better sufficiently to warrant his taking chances by going out into the damp, raw air.

The statement to this effect was given out by Private Secretary Buchanan at noon today, following the visit of Dr. R. A. Graves. Dr. Graves, after his visit, was ordered, beyond the following statement:

The Governor's condition remains about the same as it was yesterday. The Governor's most urgent trip might not hurt him, but it would be taking great chances, and I cannot think of going at this time. The weather has not changed, and the risk of having the house would not be wise. There is still evidence of fever. He has a cough, and he is very weak.

The Governor has requested Lieutenant Graves, a friend of his, to represent him and to read the greetings of the Commonwealth to the President and to the alumni of the class of 1880 at the luncheon in Memorial Hall to-morrow.

Didn't Mind the Rain.

A part of the tour was cut out owing to the sudden shower. The party waited at the residence of Bishop Lawrence, where there were gathered Lieutenant-Governor Guild, President Eliot, Judge Lowell and Rev. Dr. Crothers and members of the bishop's family until 11:35.

At that hour the President came out, wearing a black slouch hat, which was well pulled down over his face. Bishop Lawrence was with him, as was Kermit Roosevelt, who arrived from Groton and was given an affectionate father's greeting on the Lawrence house steps.

In front of the house there were gathered about 300 people, who were kept on the opposite side of the street by the police detail.

Benjamin Reese, Bishop Lawrence's coachman, had pulled up the hood of the landau because it rained and he did not want the distinguished Harvard man to get wet. The President asked that he be pulled down. This was done and he raised his hat when the crowd cheered. His collar was turned up and he appeared not to mind the rain a bit.

AT ALPHA DELTA PHI HOUSE.

In the same manner as he arrived at Cambridge, the President left. Around his carriage gathered the mounted police, to a seat beside the coachman jumped Tyree of the Secret Service.

They moved off slowly and found themselves in the midst of a crowd of sun and carriages. For a few moments the President's secret horseman separated in the mass. Women and children crowded the carriage despite the efforts of the guards to keep them away. The President smiled at them and they cheered him.

Then the escort got together and drove everyone back.

They proceeded to Harvard Square, where the party stopped at the Alpha Delta Phi clubhouse. They were inside the clubhouse for several minutes here. He requested that he be treated as a Harvard man only was honored, and old times were talked over in a jolly way.

The stop at the clubhouse was brief.

Through Mount Auburn street the carriage made its way to Belmont street.

Here an additional escort of twelve mounted men from the Watertown force joined the guard. At the arrival at the club grounds soon after the noon hour a good-sized crowd had gathered.

At 1 o'clock there is an hour's reception of Harvard men at the Secretariat and at 1 o'clock the class dinner.

Then the escort got together and drove everyone back.

Zoa White Searchers, Led by Mongrel Dog, FIND GIRL IN SWAMP

Constables Follow Through the Cracking Brush to Find Her Unconscious.

Doctors Baffled by Condition of Young Woman; Missing Several Days.

Special to the Boston American.

CLINTON, June 27.—Her life ebbling away from exhaustion and hunger, Miss Zoa White was today found unconscious in a swamp near the factory where she worked up to the time of her disappearance last Wednesday. For six nights and five days she was presumably in the swamp exposed to bitter weather conditions. Some one lives in the addition of the factory, but no one was able to find her. She was found by a mongrel dog, which was led by a pack of dogs, and was brought to the factory. The dog was named "Zoa."

Dog Pursues Scout.

Miss White was found by Constable Walter White, who is no relative although he has the same name, and William Bradford, with the assistance of a small mongrel dog, "Zoa." Throughout the dog was a scout through the swamp, and finally he discovered in the undergrowth. After a moment he was heard barking furiously.

The men went in him and found the girl.

When found Miss White was sitting cross-legged in a natural position. Beside her lay her lunch basket, empty. It was the basket she carried from the Factory Net & Twine Company factory, where she had been employed. Her hat had been found in the branches of the tree immediately above her.

Stricken On Her Way.

It is believed probable that Miss White, who is subject to epileptic attacks, was stricken on her way home from the factory on last Wednesday night, and was found by the dog.

BIG NEWS BRINGS TAFT TO PRESIDENT IN RUSH

LONG DISPATCH FROM WASHINGTON MAY CONCERN PEACE OR PANAMA.

Secretary of War Taft is rushing to Boston today to hold an important conference with President Roosevelt. The Secretary is expected early this afternoon. President Roosevelt has been in attendance on the graduation week exercises of Harvard University, but he is expected to return to the White House on Wednesday.

Haste Sign of Importance.

Under ordinary circumstances, all matters pertaining to both Panama and the peace situation would have been held until the President had called his visit to Cambridge. The fact that the Secretary is rushing to Boston is a sign of the importance of the matter.

Yellow Fever KILLS EDITOR

PANAMA, June 27.—W. E. Woodbury, editor of the Star and Herald of Panama, is dead from yellow fever. Mr. Woodbury was a Scotchman. He was formerly connected with newspapers in Jamaica.

ROOSEVELT IN CAMBRIDGE UNDER CLOSE GUARD

W. HENRY HYDE, Station 15. LEWIS SMITH, Station 11. PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT. GEORGE H. MUNIER, DRIVER BENJAMIN REESE, Station 11. The Bishop's Coachman.

PARSHOT TAKEN TO DAY NEAR NEW OLD SOUTH CHURCH BY STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER JOSEPH H. REID OF THE BOSTON AMERICAN.

HOW PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT WAS GUARDED ON HIS TRIP TO-DAY FROM BOSTON TO CAMBRIDGE.

Showing the nation's Chief Executive with Bishop Lawrence just after his arrival at the Back Bay Station this morning, and on his way to the Bishop's residence in Cambridge, where he was to stay at breakfast. A secret service man is with Bishop Lawrence's coachman on the driver's seat, and uniformed policemen ride by the carriage.

Joins His Classmates at Harvard After Breakfast at Bishop's Home.

John and his private secretary, Mr. Hull, arrived. With the President was his private secretary, Mr. Lusk, and Mrs. Lusk, and all secret service men. They left the station at 8:15, and the President arrived at the Bishop's home at 9:15. The President was met by Bishop Lawrence, and they went to breakfast. The President then went to Harvard to join his classmates.

THE CROWD CHEERS.
As the President was driven out of the station yard, the crowd of people gathered there, and the President was greeted with a loud cheer. The crowd was estimated to be over 1000 people. The President was seen to wave his hand to the crowd.

POLICE SERVICE EXCELLENT.
Captain O'Leary, who was in charge of the police, stated that the police service was excellent. He said that the police were well trained and that they were able to handle the large crowd of people.

CLOSELY GUARDED AT EVERY POINT

Although Theodore Roosevelt is in Cambridge today simply as an individual member of the Harvard class of '90, it is not for a moment forgotten that he is President of the United States, and he is guarded as such. Probably never before in his official life was more precaution taken to guard against any accident happening to the chief magistrate of the nation.

Secret service men from Washington and elsewhere from Boston and Cambridge to the number of more than a hundred have been ordered to the special and particular duty of looking after the distinguished visitor. So closely is his every move followed that it is impossible for an ordinary citizen to get near him.

It is understood that the President has been without such an imposing array of protection, as he has been escorted, since the date of his arrival in about any other President. The President's car was guarded by a line of police officers, and the President was seen to wave his hand to the crowd.

EVER ON THE ALERT.

On his trip from Washington to Cambridge, the President was accompanied by his secret service men. These men were on the alert at every point. The President was seen to wave his hand to the crowd, and the crowd was estimated to be over 1000 people.

Again the course of true love in society cities has ended in tears. Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Sanders have separated, and two more loving hearts have ceased to beat as one.

Mrs. Sanders is living at 38 Pinckney street.

Bradley Sanders has gone out West. It seems such a short time, in fact it was only four years ago, when Alyce Meriton La Rue, a pretty telephone operator in Tremont, N. H., captured, by her beauty and fascinating manner, the heart and soul of Thomas Sanders, director and stockholder in the Bell Telephone Company and brother of Nat Sanders of the Puritan Club.

Young Bradley Sanders went to Tremont to work for the Bell Telephone Company.

He did not immediately announce his marriage, and when he returned to Boston, the beautiful sister of the Sanders family in Beverly, he left his young and lovely wife in Tremont.

RICH BACHELOR REARSELS ELEGERS OF THE DEAD

"My Little Sweetheart" Among Endearing Terms; His Love Gets Cold.

SUIT TO RECOVER $15,000

NEW YORK, June 27.—The story of a rich bachelor's enduring episode with a woman who had gained notoriety by her husband's suicide, and then to Europe with another man was told when the trial of the suit brought Mrs. Natalie (Natalie) W. Shakespear to recover $15,000 from Frederick W. Richard, a broker who occupies elegant apartments in Breton Hall, Broadway and West 44th street, was begun before Justice Van Hook.

The broker struck her with a heavy gold-headed baton and she is now in jail.

Details of Love Affair.

Mrs. Shakespear was the first witness, and tried hard to get before the jury all the details of her love affair with the broker, but the law of evidence stood in her way. She was dressed in a light blue summer suit, with white shirt waist, white gloves and a straw hat trimmed with red and blue, and she looked bright and cheerful.

While she testified, it was the love letters, constantly the love letters, that Attorney R. M. Moore, her lawyer, was endeavoring to read. Moore also called Frederick Richardson, who was on the stand later, gave the opportunity.

"No, I never made appointments with her; she always used to make them with me," he testified.

Attorney Moore was out with a short but brilliant cross-examination of Mr. Richard. "You say that you never made appointments with her?" he asked, leading the witness to the stand.

"I did," was the reply. "It read as follows: 'My Own Sweetheart, I dreamed last night that we were married and had a pretty little home all our own. There is only one little woman in all the world for me, and that is my own little sweetheart, Natalie.'"

With lots and lots of love and kisses, I am yours, always, Frederick. Another letter on the stand, the witness said he had written, read:

To Make Natalie Happy.
MY DEAREST LITTLE NATALIE: You don't know how I am looking forward to the day when I can call you my little wife to the world and work for and protect you. I will be the constant of the future and I will make my little sweetheart proud."

With only a few more letters, and then the trial was over.

Bachelor's Love Child.
Here also are the fragments of a letter that was in the hands of the jury. It was written by Mrs. Shakespear to Mr. Richard. It is claimed Mrs. Shakespear wrote it a time when the broker was in jail.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLERS FATHER STILL ALIVE, BUT A MAN OF DEEP MYSTERY

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER'S FEATURES.

WILLIAM A. ROCKEFELLER'S FEATURES.

Family Conceals His Whereabouts. Grandson Says "He Is Somewhere in Dakota."

Traits of Younger Days, Says Miss Tarbell, Still Cling to Magnate's Sire.

One of the most interesting features of the remarkable career of William A. Rockefeller, the father of John D. Rockefeller, is that which the latter has been able to keep so completely in the background as to keep his father's name from being mentioned in connection with the name of the son.

Because of the manner in which John D. Rockefeller has been brought before the public in connection with the "tainted money" question within the past few months, the early home life of the old man has attracted the most widespread attention.

While the allegations made against the elder Rockefeller by Miss Tarbell, in the July number of McClure's Magazine, are surprising and sensational in the extreme, one thing that she asserted of him while he was yet a young man is certainly true to this day.

A Man of Mystery. William A. Rockefeller was a man of mystery when he lived in Northern New York, where he lived in Ohio, and wherever he now lives for some of his relatives will tell where he does live at the present time.

The people of the country are wondering why it is that they have never before heard anything of William A. Rockefeller, the father of John D. Rockefeller, who is now one of the most powerful men in the country.

Grandson Not Certain. "He is living in New York," said the reporter, surprised that the old man was not known to him.

Why is not young Mr. Rockefeller, who is credited with being the grandson of the founder of the Standard Oil crowd, certain where his grandfather lives in Dakota, South Dakota, as a matter of fact?

Miss Tarbell says that the aged man lives on a ranch somewhere in Iowa, still another report is that he lives in Kansas. What is the reason of this?

William A. Rockefeller, when he lived in Northern New York, was a man of mystery. He was a man of mystery when he lived in Ohio, and wherever he now lives for some of his relatives will tell where he does live at the present time.

Was a "Good Fellow." In the Ohio connection where he lived the name of "Old John" is so prominent that it is almost impossible to find a man of his name in the country.
